

ABSTRACT

A holographic photonic integrated circuit includes a substrate with a ridge plane, a waveguide formed in the ridge plane having an input and an output, a hologram formed in the ridge plane at least partially through the waveguide, and a CW light source wherein an optical signal entering the input is modulated by the CW light source to create a modulated output signal.